Note from my cluttered desk..... As we enter September I know that almost everyone has settled into school after a very exciting summer. For many I know that is exciting, especially for all those freshmen that have finally made it to High School and all those seniors who have finally made it! With school comes great things; like time with friends, pep rallies, football, test, studying and homework. That's right I said test, studying and homework. As much as you disagree those are really good things – they are in fact needed. If you are ever going to be successful in life and get the required education you need to study, do your assignments and take test (passing them of course!) Often serving God can include things that we are not exactly crazy about they are very much beneficial (like homework). Our goal is not to get an “A” in Christianity, it is to be found faithful. Have you been faithful with your walk lately? Often we take the summer off, not really focusing on spiritual things while “on vacation”. I hope as you get back into the routine of school that you find yourself back in the routine of doing the things that strengthens your walk with Christ. I love being your Student Pastor and I look forward to great things God has in store for you this school year.
